

BENDIGO BUSHWALKING AND OUTDOOR CLUB

President's Report

Autumn is a great time to be out in the bush walking with friends. David has a heap of Wednesday walks for those who can make them, and the Wednesday evening walks have been going very well, with eleven walkers on the 1st March including two international visitors Ed & Denise from Montana and another twelve participants on the 15th, although the bush hut remained a mystery. Someone said it was a myth, but after an exploratory walk, I almost guarantee we will find it on the last daylight saving walk on the 29th.

Donna and Ian are the Admin people on the Facebook page, so keep up with walk news there and we are almost there with a revitalised website. The Club is planning to also participate in shared activities with other clubs, with one of these events with the Echuca Moama Bushwalkers involving a base camp weekend and two day walks at Mt Samaria, with the possibility of a film at the historic Swanpool Cinema on the 7th – 9th of October but we don't have to wait until then with a base camp at Camperdown for the 4 Volcanoes Walk on the 15-16th April. The Club night is on Tuesday the 28th, come along for a chat.

TRIP REPORTS

Mt Feathertop Walk

Sat 25th Feb to Sun 26th Feb 2023

A 4:00pm departure from Bendigo on Friday had us in Benalla at the Northo Hotel for dinner just after 6:00pm. From there we drove on to Myrtleford and Bright with our destination for the night being the Smoko Campground just a couple of kilometres from Harrietville.

On Saturday morning we left one car at the carpark at the base of Bungalow Spur for where the walk was to finish on Sunday afternoon. We then drove on from Harrietville (but coffee first!) up to Diamantina Hut just before the Mt Hotham Ski Village. The weather was perfect – the second year in a row of doing the walk – as we set off on the track across the Razorback to Mt Feathertop.

35 cars parked at Diamantina Hut!

Start of the walk along the Razorback

Claire, Rechelle & Garry on the Razorback

Along the Razorback, Mt Hotham in background

Having seen the number of cars parked at Diamantina Hut we were expecting to see lots of people along the way on the walk. What was surprising was the number of pack carrying overnight walkers that were walking from Mt Feathertop back to cars parked on the Mt Hotham Road. Many people we saw were doing an overnight walk to Mt Feathertop and many more going to Mt Feathertop and back as a day walk (22km).

Late summer wildflowers

Late summer wildflowers

We stopped for lunch just before the Diamantina Spur junction and were surrounded by wildflowers. After lunch it was just a few kilometres to the track junction below Mt Little Feathertop - The Cross, but although the name remains the Cross itself is long gone.

In the walk across the Razorback Track we had conversations about the water situation in the Tanks at Federation Hut with walkers coming the other way and discovered there was no water at the campsite at the Hut. There are two sources of permanent spring water supplies that can be accessed in the area. Firstly about 1km along the track to MUMC Memorial Hut (which we had planned to visit on Sunday morning) and the second spring being about ½ hour from the Hut down the Bungalow Spur Track towards Harrietville (the site of the long gone Victorian Railways Bungalow Chalet – the partner to the Mt Buffalo Chalet).

North West Spur with Memorial Hut (at right)

I was not keen to do both Mt Feathertop and collect water (making the walking for the day much longer than was planned) so we split the party and added Sunday's morning walk to MUMC Memorial Hut to Saturday afternoon. I took the very easy route (without my pack) and walked on the MUMC Memorial Hut Track across the lower face of Mt Feathertop to check the water situation at the Spring. While the other four party members (without packs) took the Track to climb to the Summit of Mt Feathertop. From the Summit they descended very very very steeply down the NW spur towards MUMC Memorial Hut. I doubt anyone reading this has used that route. Once the spur flattens (photo above) the two groups rejoined and walked out to MUMC Memorial Hut for an inspection.

MUMC Memorial Hut

MUMC Memorial Hut inside

HISTORY: when active with the Monash Bushwalking Club in the mid to late 1960s I was involved with a number of MUMC work parties that built the MUMC Memorial Hut. Two memorable ones are the weekend we (Monash & MUMC members) built the entire entrance porch of the Hut, see photo. I was also there for the last work party building the Hut and ended up carrying (shared with one other person) the very long heavy wooden extension ladder seen in the photo, plus the usual weekend gear in my rucksack. All materials for the Hut were carried in by people from the closest access point along the Razorback to the north of Mt Feathertop – no helicopters in those days.

The weather was not so kind on Sunday morning when Rechelle and Claire decided to climb Mt Little Feathertop for the morning sunrise over the Australian Alps. The morning was rather misty and cool so good views were nowhere to be had. Because we had visited MUMC Memorial Hut on Saturday afternoon rather than on Sunday morning as planned we walked down Bungalow Spur Track and were back in Harrietville (now fine and sunny) before lunch. While Kerry and I did a car shuffle to get the car from Diamantina Hut the others had found a fantastic swimming spot to fill in some of the waiting time.

On the way down Bungalow Spur to Harrietville

Mt Feathertop is one of the best mountains to visit both on summer trips like the one we completed and also for a totally different experience to come back in winter time when the mountain takes on a completely different aura. My first time was in August 1965 and my last trip in February 2023 with many visits in between.

Crusoe Reservoir & Greater Bendigo NP

Evening of Wed 1st March 2023

We had eleven people for this walk - two were visitors from Montana & a couple of first timers.

We started at gate 7 and took the Marne track heading south towards the Big Hill range. It does take you all the way to the eastern Trig. The first point of interest is the depth & sweep of the Lockwood Sth channel cutting. We came across a 4 wheel drive vehicle which had driven into a creek bed and been abandoned. We crossed a metal foot ramp across the channel & went briefly off track & into 'Spiderland' on our return journey. We all had to negotiate a deep dry creek bed crossing and this caused a few difficulties. We then picked up a footpad which roughly followed the western boundary of the Park back to the cars for a neat 5k circuit.

Thanks to all the willing & helpful participants who made it a good walk.

Beeripmo in a Day. Mt Cole Range

Sun 5th March 2023

Four starters fronted up for this big day walk around the Beeripmo Circuit up in the Mount Cole range near Beaufort— Ray W, Roger K, Rechelle P, and Hans. We had a pleasant drive down to the start of the hike, thru Carisbrook, Lexton and the outskirts of Beaufort. After a quick coffee and biscuits at the start point of Richards Picnic reserve, (in effect morning tea for those that wanted it), we pushed off in a clockwise circuit at 10.

Rechelle at Start near Raglan Falls Rocks

Moss Shelf up near Cave Hill

This walk traverses some lovely, varied, forested areas, interspersed with all sorts of interesting Granite features. Raglan falls, not far from our start, had a reasonable amount of water flowing for this time of the year and we then continued up to the top of Cave Hill and around the rim of the range which provided great clear views out to the west, with the Grampians in the background. During the first two hours we ran into lots of overnight hikers, returning the opposite way, on their way back to the carpark.

Looking west out towards Grampians

Ray and Rechelle at the Gateway

Most of these had taken their younger kids out for the 'overnight hiking experience'. This was encouraging to see. Most of the ones we talked to, seemed to have enjoyed it. The Climb up and around the side of Mt Sugarloaf was possibly the steepest section of the walk but with such a small group we just 'blitzed' over that and before you could say 'Jack Robinson', (whoever that was), we were at the Beeripmo Campsite, where we planned to have a late lunch. Well that was according to the official plan. In actual fact by 1pm we were still 30 mins approx shy of the official campsite and instead, 'plonked ourselves down' on a grassy spot with views out to the south, to enjoy our meal, (generally, sandwiches and wraps). In the direct sunshine it was reasonably warm. Luckily lots of the track is covered by tall forest, so there was lots of shade available for most of the day.

Hans at Mugwamp hut

Roger and Rechelle

We did check out the Beeripmo campsite, when we got to it a bit later. Not that much further on, we stopped at the toilets and hut at Mugwamp picnic area. We'd decided against doing the Mt Buangor extension, which would have added possibly another hour onto our trip. Maybe next time! After this the sun disappeared but it was still quite warm.

All back at Richards Picnic Shelter before 5pm

Beeripmo Logo

Generally it was all downhill from here and slightly different countryside than on the exposed southern rim and ridges, of this morning. The track passes some amazingly tall tree ferns, topping off at 6+ metres. Our small group covered this last section pretty quick and by following a short cut we were back at the cars by just before 5pm. So all up we'd spent 6 hrs 45 min on the circuit. In the end we all enjoyed the walk, especially with the lovely conditions and the state of the park, as it was. It was a great test run for first time walker with the Club, Roger, who acquitted himself admirably. He was a bit apprehensive beforehand, but needn't have worried, as we all managed to keep a similar pace and rest a few times as well. As I said, it wasn't a race!

Crusoe Reservoir Evening Walks

The Wednesday evening walks have been going very well, with eleven walkers on the 1st March including two international visitors Ed & Denise from Montana. The walk led by Ray Wilson was to the western section of the park.

On the 15th of March another twelve participants walked to a deep, fenced-off mine shaft in the vicinity of the bush hut, but because of uncertainty regard returning in darkness, the bush hut trip had to wait.

Someone said the bush hut was a myth, but after an exploratory walk, I almost guarantee we will find it on the last daylight-saving walk on the 29th of March which will be the final daylight saving walk for the summer.

The walks will resume in October.

Brisbane Ranges

Sunday 21st May

Type: Day Walk Grade: Medium Distance: 13km

DESCRIPTION: The Ted Errey Nature Circuit (12-13km) is an interesting walk which uncovers various vegetation types and tracks ranging from well maintained management tracks through to small creek crossings, boardwalks and steep rocky sections. The trail starts and finishes at the Anakie Gorge Picnic Area and is identified by blue triangles once you pass through the Gorge so keep an eye out for them as they cross the Burcell trail and various 4WD tracks in places as you progress.

There are a few short side trails to outlooks along the way which are certainly worth the short detour as you will be rewarded with spectacular views over the ranges and local farmlands. Be sure to stop and look around every now and then, particularly as you pass through the Anakie Gorge section as the landscape is both rugged and beautiful.
